edication.....

*We dedicate this volume of "Sights and Insights" to Dr.
Pearl Vivian Willoughby, who is truly a "gem" and in whose classes we sigh with Juliet, laugh with Falstaff, and dance around the black cauldron with the . . . Weird Sisters. . .*

Foreword . .

*Friends, Students, Faculty, lend me your ears. As there were in Shakespeare's dramas highways of mirth and laughter and labyrinths of sadness and woe, so are there in our college days heights of joy and depths of sorrow. Unto you we give this thirty-third volume of "Sights and Insights," which has been inspired by sixteenth century England and imbued by the drama of Shakespeare. May this edition be
. "As You Like It."*

. Scenes .

'Tis no doubt that William Shakespeare would have had our forest and greensward as the setting for "A Midsummer Night's Dream," for there could never be a more magical and charming nook than among the blue bells under the tree, whose " princely trunk " is hid by ivy.

A Midsummer Night's Dream

"And this our life, exempt from public haunt, Finds tongue in trees." As You Like It

"There's nothing ill can dwell in such a temple"
—The Tempest

Night - candles are burnt out - and second day
Stands uptree on the misty mountain top - Romeo and Juliet.

"O, mickle is the powerful grace that lies
In herbs, plants, stones, and their true qualities."—Romeo and Juliet.

"... nor strong links of iron,
Can be retentive to the strength of spirit" — Julius Caesar.

"One touch of nature makes the whole world kin."

—Trinity and Cecelia

"... books in the running brooks, Sermons in stones and good in everything!" To You Like It

"I know a bank where the wild thyme blows
Where oxlips and the nodding violet grows."

A Midsummer Night's Dream

. Faculty .

With your guidance and steering, our scholarship has found the right direction, and our sails have been billowed by wisdom and kindness.

Greetings

Readers will do well to remember that each annual edition of SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS is far more than merely a collection of college photographs and a list of college names.

It is much more than these because it is, in reality, an interpretation of College spirit and of College achievement for a given year and with respect to a given group. Between the lines the attentive reader can indeed see beneath the surface and can thus learn much that is highly significant of student life and attitude.

Presented in the Shakespearean mode it is an instinctive tribute to literature's outstanding Guide into a sense of historical obligation to the past, of current appreciation in the fields of fellowship and cooperation, of indispensable characteristic and wise uses of humor and of the aesthetic claims made upon us because we live in so beautiful a world.

Salem College salutes the 1936 edition of SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS.

(Signed)

HOWARD E. RONDTHALER,
President.

Senior: Vice-President of Home Economics Club, Science Club, May Day Committee, Y. W. C. A. Committee.

Mary Nelson, 'twas not only Shakespere who thought that:

"From woman's eyes this doctrine I derive;
They sparkle still the right Promethean fire," for 'tis known that many swains resist not the twinkle of thine eyes, and perhaps they have heard said that thou hast skill in the culinary art.

As 'twas said of Rosalind, so we say of McArn, that you will "never find her without an answer, until you find her without a tongue," for she is constantly winding the watch of her wit. "By and by it will strike."

Louise Adelaide Blum

The web of thy life is of a mingled yarn with three distinct strands of wit, wisdom, and sincerity, which when woven together, give a harmonious blending of a true admirable maiden.

Agnes Florence Brown

"When tongues speak sweetly, then they name her name," and Agnes they call her, for upon her the gods have bestowed sweetness, lively wit, and sensibility, and above all that, talent to find "sermons in stones, and good in everything."

Grace Elizabeth Carter
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in Education

Freshman: Mars Hill College.
Sophomore: Mars Hill College.
Junior: Psychology Club, Glee Club.
Senior: Psychology Club.

Grace hath thoughts deeply hid from the prying eyes of the world and reserved for only a few, but 'tis a common truth that "where words are scarce, they are seldom spent in vain." We are glad that thou hath "graced" our merry midst.

Phyllis Clapp

Freshman: Glee Club, May Court.
Sophomore: Glee Club, May Court.
Junior: Glee Club, May Court.
Senior: May Queen, Glee Club.

When we see our fair queen of the May we shall say, "How sweet a thing it is to wear a crown," and how sweet a person wears it!" When the Elizabethan curtain rises on thee, thou art seen in the queen's court, bedecked in pearls and satin, playing a virginal.

Mary Henrietta Daniel
Rocky Mount, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in Education

Freshman: Peace Junior College.
Sophomore: Peace Junior College.
Junior: "Salemite" Staff, Psychology Club.
Senior: Secretary of Psychology Club.

To hear Titter's merry chuckle we might think that there are no "hriars in this working-day world" for her, but she is not one to talk of her trials and troubles; she doth "fleet the time as they did in the golden age," not carelessly but gayly.

Virginia Estelle Garner

Freshman: Mathematics Club, History Club, Class Honors.

The type hath been set; the ink is pale green; the paper is ivory; the headlines spell Virginia. And 'tis the story of a maiden, who, as the poet, "never durst touch a pen to write until his ink were tempered with love's sight."

Amanda Margaret Hallman
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in Education

Sophomore: Psychology Club, German Club, Hockey Team

Junior: Psychology Club, German Club, Hockey Team

Amanda, with thy smiling face thou hast cheered us these four years. From thy study of German thou art one of those most worthy to converse with Goethe or with Schiller. In the years to come we hope that Dame Fortune may model thy recognition on theirs.

Committee, Psychology Club, Hockey Team, Tennis Team, Athletic Council, Day Student House Committee, Order of Scorpion, Student Advisor, "Sights and Insights" Staff, President's Forum, Hockey Varsity.

'Tis Melrose, in whose quiet, settled mind are sources of pleasure, love, and knowledge, which like springs, feed mountain lakes, impenetrable, unfathomable, inexhaustible, "and this is the short and long of it."

Marianna Hooks
Wilson, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in History

Freshman: History Club, Young Democrat's Club.

Sophomore: Psychology Club, Pierrette Players.

Junior: Pierrette Players, I. R. S., Basketball Team.

Senior: Student Council, May Day Committee, Pierrette Players, May Court.

'Tis Marianna who shall nimbly lead the measure on a mid-summer night, but don't mistake her for Titania, for she can neither hide in an acorn cup nor stand poised on a musk-rose, but she doth frolic and flit as a fairy queen, but lo! the shadow of her crown has the form of orange blossoms.

Meta Fletcher Hutchison
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Science in Biology

Freshmen: W. C. U. N. C.

Junior: Psychology Club, Hockey Varsity, Basketball Team, Day Student House Committee.

Senior: Student Government, May Day Committee, Order of Scorpion, German Club, Science Club, Psychology Club, Hockey Team, Day Student House Committee, Student Advisor, Hockey Varsity.

Meta, art not thy motto, "But screw your courage to the sticking place, and we'll not fail"? Thon goest about calm and valiant with a dignity, softened by tenderness without weakness, that even Hermoine would envy.

Senior: President of French Club, President's Forum, Class Poet, "Sights and Insights" Staff, Alpha Iota Pi, German Club.

Ruth, dost thou wander through the green-wood hanging poems to trees for thy Orlando? Or perhaps thou art running a race with Cleopatra, who knew thrice times ten languages, for truly thou hast been to a feast of the languages and stolen more than the scraps.

Dorothy Lashmit

Red-haired, demure mannered Dot—a girl of contradictions, a Dot with a dash, a sparkling wit, and a friendly mien. Hers is a rare, winning charm which has gained for her a sure, unshakeable foothold in our hearts.

Nancy Elizabeth McNeely
Coolceemee, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Music in Public School Music

Junior: Order of Scorpion, Secretary and Treasurer of I. R. S., Assistant Business Manager of "Sights and Insights," President's Forum, May Day Committee, Pierrette Players, German Club, Glee Club, Hockey Team, Basketball Varsity.

Senior: President of I. R. S., Order of Scorpion, German Club, President's Forum, Pierrette Players, Glee Club, Hockey Team, Basketball Team, Student Advisor, Y. W. C. A. Committee.

It pleasure and actions make the hours seem short, how fast the world wags for thee, Nancy, for thou art always up and away on a pleasure jaunt or busy with thy music. And thou hast never yet been known to darken the mirth o' the feast.

Eugenia Parks McNew
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in German

Freshman: Student Government, Mathematics Club, Hockey Varsity, Basketball Team.

Sophomore: Student Government, I. R. S., Secretary and Treasurer of Mathematics Club, German Club, "Salemite" Staff, Athletic Council, Manager of Track, Hockey Varsity, Basketball Team.

Junior: Vice-President of Alpha Iota Pi, Athletic Council, Manager of Baseball, "Sights and Insights" Staff, German Club, Mathematics Club, Monogram Club, Hockey Team, Basketball Team, Volley Ball Team.

Senior: "Sights and Insights" Staff, Vice-President of Mathematics Club, Athletic Council, Manager of Hockey, Alpha Iota Pi, German Club, Monogram Club, Tennis Team, Archery Team, Hockey Varsity, Basketball Team, Volley Ball Team.

Eugenia, shouldst please ye to don doublet and hose and hie through forest and mead incognito as did Viola and be a pert page? And perhaps ye might borrow Cupid's bow and arrows and show the foresters how to shoot, but take care that ye do not prick thyself with the heart-rending arrow.

Erika Marx
Nazareth, Pennsylvania

Candidate for Bachelor of Science in Home Economics

Freshman: Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, Home Economics Club, Hockey Varsity, Captain of Class Team, Basketball Varsity, Captain of Class Team.

Senior: President of Y. W. C. A., Student Government, President's Forum, Order of Scorpion, Student Advisor, German Club, Home Economics Club, Science Club, Monogram Club, Hockey Varsity, Basketball Team, Volley Ball Team.

Erika, thou art another Isabella, whose intellect elevated by religious principles, wit, wisdom, and virtue, gave her firmness of character and depth of reflection. And here's envy for the swain who will some day eat your pies and puddings.

Mary Lawrence Mills
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Music in Voice

Freshman: Treasurer of Class, Glee Club.

Sophomore: Order of Scorpion, Vice-President of Class, President of Glee Club, President's Forum, Glee Club.

Junior: Order of Scorpion, Glee Club.

Senior: Vice-President of I. R. S., Glee Club, Order of Scorpion, Music Committee of May Day Committee.

Mary, thou art "as merry as the day is long," and we long for long days with you. The golden touch of thy sweet voice, like Orpheus's lute, strung with poet's sinews, can "soften steel and stones." And there is no doubt that the Bard of Avon would have been charmed to hear Our Mary sing "Hark, Hark, the Lark!"

Marian Mitchell
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in English

Sophomore: French Club, May Day Pageant.

Senior: May Day Committee.

'Twas flashing dark eyes such as thine that caused the poet to say:

"For where is any author in the world

Teaches such beauty as a woman's eye?"
But it doth not take an author to realize that,
for 'tis rumored that:

"She's beautiful and therefore to be woo'd;

She is a woman, therefore to be won."
From books and pens to pots and pans!

Stephanie Marie Newman
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in Mathematics

Freshman: Mathematics Club.

Sophomore: Mathematics Club, Psychology Club.

Junior: Order of Scorpion, May Day Committee,
Day Student House Committee, Mathematics
Club, Psychology Club, Class Honors.

Senior: Off-Campus Vice-President of Student Government, President's Forum, Order of Scorpion, May Day Committee, "Salemite"
Staff, Chairman of Day Student House
Committee, Student Advisor, Mathematics
Club, Psychology Club.

On whom doth the curtain rise? On whom do the footlights shine? 'Tis Stephanie, and from the crown of her head to the sole of her foot she is all mirth. But lo! The curtain hath risen again, and as "jesters do oft prove prophets," Stephanie is serious and sincere and wise.

Alma Carlotta Ogburn
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Science in Biology

Sophomore: Psychology Club.

Junior: Psychology Club.

Senior: President of Science Club, President's Forum, German Club, "Salendite" Staff, Psychology Club.

Shouldst thou mix Carlotta's sweet disposition and determined ability and hold over the Bunsen flame of class spirit, there would result an amber colored mixture of purest friendship and the most genuine efficiency.

Ada Margaret Pfohl
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in French and English

Freshman: History Club, French Club, Hockey Varsity.

Sophomore: History Club, French Club, Psychology Club, German Club.

Junior: French Club, German Club, Vice-President of Psychology Club, "Sights and Insights" Staff Athletic Council, Manager of Track, May Day Committee.

Senior: President of German Club, President's Forum, "Sights and Insights" Staff, French Club, Psychology Club, Y. W. C. A. Commission.

Ada, under a pair of pale blue wings, thou springest from a nodding violet to a lucious woodbine, to awaken with thy clear, sweet voice Titania, thy fair queen. Be careful that thou dost not skip off with a handsome elf, for they would miss thee in fairyland, Fraulein Fairy Sprite.

Mary Garnelle Raney
Salisbury, North Carolina

*Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in Sociology
and Economics*

Freshman: "Salemite" Staff, French Club, Young Democrat's Club.

Sophomore: "Sights and Insights" Staff, May Court, French Club, Psychology Club.

Junior: Student Government, House President, Assistant Business Manager of "Sights and Insights," Marshal, May Court, Pierrette Players, Psychology Club, Golf Squad.

Senior: President of Psychology Club, President of Pierrette Players, President's Forum, Maid of Honor in May Court, Class Prophet, Y. W. C. A., "Salemite" Staff, I. R. S.

Even though Garnelle hath Dian's wit, she's apt to be hit with Cupid's arrow, for the gallant flock 'round to catch bits of her irresistible charm and airy elegance. And on the stage she could play the role of any heroine from the pastoral nymph Phebe to Beatrice, a Renaissance damsel.

Susan Katherine Rawlings
Goldboro, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Science in Home Economics

Freshman: Home Economics Club, History Club, Young Democrat's Club, Riding Squad.

Sophomore: Secretary of Y. W. C. A., Marshal, "Salemite" Staff, Home Economics Club, History Club, Psychology Club, Hockey Team, Basketball Team, Tennis Team, Riding Squad.

Junior: "Salemite" Staff, Secretary of Home Economics Club, Fire Chief, May Court Basketball Team, Tennis Team, Riding Squad, Golf Team.

Senior: Business Manager of "Salemite" Staff, Student Government, Student Advisor, President of Home Economics Club, President's Forum, May Day Committee, Riding Squad, Science Club.

"Who is Susan? What is she?"

That all the swains commend her?"
She is gentility, charm, and poise, and these admirable qualities have oft been known to "trip" the gallant heroes.

Josephine Paris Reece
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Science in Home Economics

Freshman: Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, May Day Committee, Home Economics Club.

Sophomore: May Day Committee, Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, Home Economics Club, Psychology Club, Basketball Team, Hockey Team.

Junior: Order of Scorpion, May Day Committee, Day Student House Committee, Student Council, Treasurer of Psychology Club, Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, Basketball Team, Volley Ball Team.

Senior: Chairman of May Day Committee, President's Forum, Order of Scorpion, Student Advisor, Home Economics Club, Science Club, Basketball Team.

Josephine, thee I shouldst cast for the role of Mistress Page, ready for any prauk that might not sully the chariness of thy honesty, even to dumping a droll Falstaff into a clothes basket. In Josephine we find a frolic humor with a background of penetrative wisdom and capricious originality.

Mary Elizabeth Reeves
Weaverville, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in Education and History

Freshman: Weaver College.

Sophomore: Weaver College.

Junior: "Salemite" Staff, Pierrette Players, Psychology Club, Tennis Team, May Day Committee.

Senior: "Salemite" Staff, Pierrette Players, Psychology Club, Tennis Team.

Had Shakespeare written of the Spanish heroine Diana as did Montemayer, 'tis no doubt that he wouldst have had one like thee in mind for the drama, for thou hast a skill in acting. May thy curtain fall on a happy ending.

Ida Ruth Reznick
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in History

Freshman: History Club.
Sophomore: History Club, Psychology Club.
Junior: History Club, Psychology Club.
Senior: Psychology Club.

It seems that Ida's ambition is made of "sterner stuff" than most hopes and ideals, for already she hath begun to realize them in her views about this "working-day world." And history for her is a joy—especially the episodes of the "Norman" conquest.

Dorothea Rights
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in Education

Sophomore: Dress Committee of May Day.
Junior: Assistant Art Editor of "Sights and Insights," Representative to I. R. S., Psychology Club, Mathematics Club, Basketball Team.
Senior: Representative to I. R. S., "Salemite" Staff, Mathematics Club.

Dorothea, we knoweth not all the wrongs but we certainly knoweth one of the Rights, and 'tis thee, for thy sweet temper and wit have brightened our class, and thy artistic inclination multiplied by thy literary slope equals an admirable quality.

Jean Robinson
Lowell, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Music in Piano

Freshman: French Club, Glee Club, Young Democrat's Club, Class Honors.

Sophomore: German Club, Psychology Club, Class Honors, Glee Club.

Junior: Representative to I. R. S., Glee Club, German Club, May Court, Class Honors.

Senior: Representative to I. R. S., Glee Club, May Court.

In "A Midsummer Night's Dream," at a certain seamaid's music, some starts shot madly from their spheres. Be careful, Jean, with thy music, that thou dost not cause a disturbance among the astronomical elements, except for several "sons," who, it seems have already fallen.

Marjorie Glenn Robinson
Lowell, North Carolina

Candidate for Bachelor of Science in Home Economics

Freshman: Winthrop College.

Sophomore: Queens-Chicora College.

Junior: Queens-Chicora College.

Senior: May Court, Home Economics Club.

Marjorie, 'twas kindness in women, not their beauteous looks, that won Petruchio's love, but thou shalt be wooed and won, for both kindness and beauty are thine, and moreover thou hast talent to prepare such savory dishes as would make Falstaff forget his cakes and ale.

Martha Caroline Schlegel
Nazareth, Pennsylvania

*Candidate for Bachelor of Science in
Home Economics*

Freshman: Home Economics Club, Hockey Team.

Sophomore: Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, "Salemite" Staff, May Day Committee, Home Economics Club, Psychology Club, Hockey Varsity.

Junior: Order of Scorpion, Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, "Salemite" Staff, May Day Committee, Athletic Council, Manager of Soccer, Home Economics Club, Hockey Varsity.

Senior: Vice-President of Y. W. C. A. Student Government, "Salemite" Staff, Order of Scorpion, May Day Committee, German Club, Science Club, Home Economics Club, Hockey Varsity.

Martha's heart is a stage where Service is the play and Love hath the leading role. Her dramatic devices are a sunny look and a Pennsylvania brogue, both of which are all sufficient to dispel even the most persistent articles barring the way to the happy ending.

Anna Gertrude Schwalbe
Bethel, Alaska

Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in Mathematic

Freshman: Student Government, "Salemite" Staff, Pierrette Players, French Club, Mathematics Club, History Club, Hockey Team, Basketball Team.

Sophomore: Secretary of Class, Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, "Salemite" Staff, May Day Committee, Athletic Council, Pierrette Players, French Club, German Club, Mathematics Club, Hockey Team, Volley Ball Team, Swimming, Basketball Varsity, Monogram Club, Psychology Club.

Junior: Secretary of Student Government, Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, Order of Scorpion, "Salemite" Staff, Vice-Chairman of May Day, Secretary and Treasurer of Pierrette Players, German Club, French Club, Mathematics Club, Psychology Club, Monogram Club, Basketball Team, Class Honors.

Senior: President of Student Government, Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, Order of Scorpion, I. R. S., May Day Committee, President's Forum, Pierrette Players, German Club, Mathematics Club, Monogram Club, Hockey Team, Student Advisor, Day Student House Committee, Hockey Varsity.

Gertrude hath a dignity colored with a poetical splendor which renders her "queen o'er herself." She might be likened to Isabella, who stood "like a stately cedar, towering on some alpine cliff, unbowed, and unscathed amid a storm."

Margaret Matthews Sears
High Point, North Carolina

*Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in Sociology
and Economics*

Freshman: High Point College.

Sophomore: Psychology Club, Tennis Team.

Junior: Psychology Club, Tennis Team, "Sights and Insights" Staff.

Senior: Vice-President of Psychology Club,
Chairman Dance Committee of May Day.

Margaret, thou art another to dance on the green common with the village lads and lassies, and thou art apt to be the leader, for thou hast a marked skill in tripping the measure. May thy exuberant gaiety win for thee the leading role in a happy drama.

Bessie Reid Shipp
Newton, North Carolina

*Candidate for Bachelor of Arts in English

Bessie Reid, from thy serenity, we learn that "smooth runs the water where the brook is deep," for thou hast a profound wisdom and a genuine talent. May thy plots and characters be realized, tinged with the fervor of thy imagination and sketched by thy clever quill.

Madeline, hadst thou lived in the Forest of Arden, thou wouldst have delighted in gathering the luscious woodbine, sweet eglantine and nodding violets. But thou shouldst have taken care, for Cupid is prone to lurk in the woods, ready to shoot his arrow at the least provocation of a flashing smile or the sweep

Class History

Massive white columns, staunch brick buildings clustered with sturdy ivy, low archways leading to a "sequestered vale," and rogged bricks matched side by side to form an historical walk cast their shadows over us as we hesitatingly bade farewell to friends and parents and watched them disappear into the threatening darkness. What an impressive mystery Salem is at night! Like a never dying sentinel, with might in her walls and endurance in every weather-beaten brick, she watches silently as she has watched and will watch for ages the lights flicker in the city, the street car rumbling over iron rails, and she contemplates the distant stars. Somewhere in her towering form there is hidden the secret of her mystery and atmosphere which flows through us and blends with us the spirit that is ever hers.

For the first time that looming shadow crept over our faces when we entered in 1932 as Freshmen, a name which brings comedy to our minds, but to us represents a sacred year, a year full of promise and hope, a year that gave to us the meaning of love and companionship. Green young things? Yes, but the ignorant Freshmen who are willing to learn are much more valuable than the graduates who "know it all."

The long wait in front of the Treasurer's office gave us a much prized opportunity to look over our fellow beginners, to determine what girl might be a timid, studious daughter of learning, and who might be the bold athlete with audacity enough to argue for her rights. Vague suggestions as to what subjects we should like to take made very little impression on the faculty, for it appeared that all the unpopular courses of the college were forced upon the Freshmen, who had to smile sweetly and express their eager anticipation to begin. Indeed, the wait was not long; chapel was to be at eleven o'clock Thursday. Memorial Hall was strange to us, but Dr. Rondthaler's radiant face banished our fears, and that comforting, triumphant song, "Standing at the Portals," sung by stately Seniors, filled us with awe and ambition—ambition to trample under our feet the oppressing cares of life, to study to make ourselves approved to man and God, and after three delightfully difficult years, to stand as victors at those same portals and implant faith in the hearts of a new class.

The first announcement, made in a clear and commanding tone, rang through the audience, "Classes will begin promptly at eleven," and when Salem says "promptly" she means "promptly."

Of course studies are the important part of college, and we Freshmen did not neglect them; but something in those massive buildings, in the lofty trees of Lower Campus, in the little brook that lent its melody to a peaceful grove, told us that we could find sermons in other things than books. Therefore, each found her place in athletics or organizations. We laid aside our books to be dazzling chorus girls, witty imitations of Amos and Andy, or smiling waitresses in a Bazaar for our Sister Juniors. We skinned our legs, bruised our hands and knees, and almost froze our noses trying to push a hockey ball around opponents and into the goal. We were successful—not in winning the cup, but in proving to the upper classmen that red means danger.

Under the leadership of capable Frances Lambeth, and with the sparkling personality of Miss Eloise Vaughn to inspire us, we accomplished more than the requirements and joyfully welcomed vacation.

The looming shadow lengthened and turned its misty fingers around our hearts. The staunch buildings smiled on us at our return, and the archways beckoned us to draw near. Undaunted Sophomores? Yes, but dauntlessness is necessary for true success. In exulting pride we descended upon the innocent Freshmen like a wolf on the lambs. With the tone of law and cruel practice we summoned them to court and unburied each buried sin. We reduced their stubborn wills and transformed them into beasts. We made Houdinis in the most unexpected ways, and out of the least promising victims. Then to show them that we meant well, we danced jigs or ate gold spinach at their command. It appears that the long dreaded Sophomore Court passed into history with our class, and milder means are now employed.

The call of sports led us on; red suits flashed on hockey field and on basketball court and this time they carried with them not only danger but victory. Those two silver loving cups, tied with red ribbons, symbolized cooperation and never-failing energy; they stand as concrete proof of that encouraging motto: "Labor omnia vincit."

With the aid of the graceful body and light foot of Terpsichore, defiant athletics in flaming suits overnight changed to demure maidens in flowing gowns, who were escorted to the "Ball Room" to see the social event of the year—the impressive coronation ceremony for King Campbell and Queen Vest. We became the first class in Salem's history to be attendants of a living king and queen, but in a short time court life became monotonous, and we longed for wide open spaces. That rocking street car that rumbles down Main Street was one night transformed into a theatre-boud and parlor in which dignified Seniors laid aside ceremony and had a "rollicking good time" with the hostess Sophomores helping them to keep their balance, and introducing them to the most important man present, the street car conductor.

Evidently the Seniors enjoyed the company of our fun-loving class, for on every occasion given by that group the Sophomore pages were eager helpers, whether it was burning hats, planting ivy, lighting candles at Senior vespers, or planting a tree—all with our president, Naney McNeely, as an active leader.

The spreading shadow grew thick; from our beating hearts it throbbed through our veins and overflowed with abounding life—life filled with deep-rooted friendships, life lived above the monotonous routine of classes. The ivy-clad walls of Salem became channels through which we might release tingling energy and impart to others the happiness that was our heritage. Loving Juniors? Yes, but love is the mighty king of the universe, the conquering force that is never conquered, for God is love. What cannot be accomplished by harshness can easily be won by love; therefore we abandoned the stern methods of Sophomore days and entertained the Freshmen under the leadership of our president, Florida Graves. At a Cabaret Ball we presented just out of reach "Two Cigarettes in the Dark" and crooned sweet melodies to comfort them.

With the first keen wind and promise of frost the Hockey season began. Juniors fought a fierce but clean and final game with the Freshmen who forced us to share honors with them and tie the victor's cup with a purple ribbon side by side with our red.

Since clashing sticks and wounded legs do not prove a class is loving, Dan Cupid aimed his arrows and struck our class president, leaving us without a leader. After that, several young ladies wanted the vacant chair, but they had to yield to Etta Burt Warren, a new arrival to Salem who displayed her poise and ability.

Again we turned our thoughts to entertainments—this time that most magnificent all, the Junior-Senior. With nimble fingers and brilliant minds at work, we transformed the lowly "Hut" into a Japanese fairland. Dainty painted ladies crossed tiny bridges and looked at snow-covered mountains realistically portrayed on the walls. Rainbow-colored lanterns gleamed above, and purple wisteria tumbled into clusters over a tall pergola.

Business matters brought us back to Salem's halls. In an impressive ceremony the Seniors yielded their honors and robes to the Juniors. A luncheon in our honor and a ride through the city convinced us that we really were Seniors.

The misty shadow has enveloped our bodies and become a part of our souls. The concrete Salem is here, but her spirit is scattered over the earth to mother her children and to bind them to her with that everlasting tie which drew us back. Dignified Seniors? Yes, but dignity is necessary to impress upon the world the power of education. At last we were standing at the portals, this time without the beaming face of Dr. Rondthaler to banish our fears, but we resolved to carry on our duties and show our wealth.

Etta Burt Warren, again our president, led us to battle where we conquered our foes and burned our hats. We put on our caps and gowns and officially became Seniors with one aim, one heart, and one soul. Gertrude Schwalbe, Student Government President, began her weekly meetings. Virginia Garner gave "Salemite" assignments and visited the printers. Lois Torrence sketched figures and planned arrangements for a praise-worthy annual. Since all work and no play would make even Seniors dull company, we smoothed our dancing and polished our sweet manners at a delightful entertainment. We lighted gleaming candles and sang Christmas hymns at Senior Vespers. We welcomed Santa Claus and gained good suggestions for sharpening our wits at the Christmas party. Then we became English boys and girls, and by candle-light we carolled to our good friends and neighbors.

Eagerly we looked forward to graduation week with exchange of caps and gowns, dinners, practice, and finally graduation itself. We might have our diplomas, our robes might be given to the Juniors, but nothing can take away the experiences of four successful years at Salem. Wherever we may go, whatever we may do, her spirit will be constantly by us to guard us and to direct us. We cannot leave the past behind us, for the shadow has become a part of our lives.

Last Will and Testament

State: North Carolina.

County: Forsyth.

City: Winston-Salem.

To whom it may concern:

SECTION I

We, the class of 1936, being of sound mind and in full possession of all our faculties, preparatory to leaving the school where for four years we have journeyed the road to Knowledge, do hereby declare this document to be our last will and testament.

SECTION II

We, the class of 1936 bequeath:

To the Juniors, our dignity, our dormitory, our privileges, our Chapel seats, and our caps and gowns.

To the Sophomores, our sisterly affection and our sincere good wishes.

To the Freshmen, the guardianship of the lowly green worms.

To the class of 1940, our beloved colors, red and white. May they cherish them as we have!

SECTION III

To the students:

We, Mary Nelson Anderson, Marjorie Robinson, and Susan Rawlings, bequeath to all would-be housekeepers our personal recipe for keeping the parlor well-stocked with the choice dates.

We, Louise Blum and Dorothy Lashmit, bequeath the example of our turbulent but nevertheless eternal friendship for Charlotte King and Mary Margaret Johnson to emulate.

We, Mary Elizabeth Reeves, Gertrude Schwalbe, and Garnelle Raney, bequeath our dramatic abilities to Anna Wray Fogle in the hope that with them she will no longer feel inclined to hide her light beneath a sofa.

I, Mary Mills, bequeath my voice to Rosalind Duncan so that she may the louder sing her praises of Salem and its faculty.

We, Erika Marx and Martha Schlegel, two members of the Salem triumvirate, bequeath to the third member, Josephine Ritter, some Pennsylvania pretzels and hologna so that she may not be left altogether desolate.

I, Etta Burt Warren, bequeath to the next Senior Class president the cares and duties of my office, including all the joys and sorrows incumbent upon getting the Seniors to practice for Hat Burning, Christmas Vespers, and other similar occasions.

I, Madeline Smith, bequeath to the next Senior House President infinite patience, majestic fortitude, and ears deafened to the sound of showers after eleven.

We, Janet Stimpson, Stephanie Newman, and McArn Best, bequeath our protractors, compasses, sines and cosines to Leila Williams so that with them she may cut a bigger figure.

We, Melrose Hendrix, Margaret Schwarze, and Eleanor Watkins, bequeath our Horace's and Cæro's to Peggy Brawley in the hope that they may share with Tommy a place in her heart.

Feeling sorry for both the music students who have to practice and the other students who have to listen to them, we, Virginia Thompson, Jean Robinson, Nancy McNeely, and Wilda Mae Yingling, bequeath to Memorial Hall sound proof walls and player pianos, in the hope that then the musicians may with the least effort have harmony, and the rest of the college, peace.

I, Ruth Kuykendall, bequeath my Spanish dictionaries and my knack of using them to Arnice Topp so that she too can read Solilega in one sitting.

We, Lois Forrence and Mary Louise Shore, bequeath the keys, the pens, the ink pots—in fact, the whole annual office—to the next editor and business manager of SIGHTS AND INSIGHTS. We hope, however, that they will revere any and all stray proofs or ads which might (who knows?) be the ghosts of at least two members of the '36 staff.

We, Marrianna Hooks, Margaret Sears, Sara Katherine Thompson, and Mary Daniel bequeath our man power to Peggy Bowen, who really does not need it but can be relied upon to use it to the best advantage.

We, Marion Mitchell, Grace Carter, and Dorothea Rights, bequeath our Shakespeare notes to Nancy Schallert, and quote the followings "All's well that ends well."

I, Phyllis Clapp, bequeath my seat in chapel to anyone who is interested and hope that she will derive as much use from it as I have.

We, Josephine Reece and Adelaide Trotter, bequeath to Jane Crow and Frances Salley our Practice House experience with the hope that their joys will be many and their burnt biscuits few.

We, Amanda Hallman and Carlitta Ogburn, bequeath to all the day students our ability to get to chapel without being driven.

We, Betty Wilson, Ada Pfohl, and Rebecca Faw, bequeath to the library some more copies of Sophocles and Euripides, just so that in the future there will be enough to go around.

We, Agnes Brown, Eugenia McNew, and Meta Hutchison, bequeath our athletic ability to any team that may need a goal or a basket in a hurry.

I, Virginia Garner, bequeath to the next Salemite editor my versatility, my resourcefulness, and my "nose for news."

I, Anna Withers, bequeath my musical ability to Helen Jones in the hope that I shall be present when the Seniors march in her procession.

SECTION IV

We, the class of 1936 bequeath:

To Dr. and Mrs. Rondthaler, our deep affection, respect, and appreciation.

To Miss Lawrence and Miss Riggan, our sincere thanks for all their past favors and kindnesses.

SECTION V

To Salem College:

To our Alma Mater, we bequeath our eternal love and loyalty and our fond wishes for her future growth and prosperity.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my seal, this seventh day of December, nineteen hundred and thirty-five, anno Domini.

BESSIE REID SHIPP, Testator.

Signed, sealed, published, and declared by Bessie Reid Shipp, the testator, for the class of nineteen hundred and thirty-six as their last will and testament in the presence of us, who, at her request, and in the presence of each other, have hereunto subscribed our names as witnesses.

ETTA BURT WARREN, President.

MELORE HENDRIX, Secretary.

Prophecy

Blazing lights on the New York theater announced that tonight, December 14, 1940, was the opening night of the motion picture, "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Chauffered limousines drew up before the theater with beautifully gowned women and smartly groomed men.

It was a typical premiere night. Gaping crowds pressed against the dividing ropes. One particularly zealous individual slipped through the ropes to accost the beautiful Marion Mitchell, star of the show, for her autograph. Miss Mitchell smiled graciously and spoke to the crowd, but her words were lost in the din of the traffic and the shouts of the newsboys.

One boy loudly shouted, "Extra! Extra! Ida Reznick, eminent philosopher, questions Einstein's theory of relativity," while one of his competitors lustily proclaimed that Stephanie Newman and Janet Stimpson, mathematicians, had discovered a fifth dimension.

A C.B.S. announcer, husband of Marjorie Robinson and director of her "Aunt Marjie's Program for the Kiddies," stood in the lobby of the theater, asking celebrities and socialites to say a word over the microphone to the public.

His first victim was the former Miss Susao Rawlings, now married to the scion of a wealthy New York family. She looked very lovely in a wine velvet evening gown designed by Adelaide Trotter, New York fashion dictator. Miss Trotter's most famous model is Miss Phyllis Clapp.

The next arrivals were Mr. and Mrs. Hunk Soavely. Mr. Snavely puts out a Sugar Bowl team every year. His wife, McArn, lingered near the mike long enough to say, "Oh, I think this is wonderful!"

She was followed by Senator and Mrs. C. D. Stifshurt. Mrs. Stifshurt, formerly Miss Etta Burt Warren, is a notable Girl Scout leader and purchaser of the first Red Cross Christmas seal.

There was quite a commotion as Margaret Sears, an arbitrator in labor disputes and a prominent figure in Economics, appeared. She was accompanied by her business manager and publisher, Mary Louise Shore.

A 1935 gray Buick pulled up at the curb and Marianna and Herb got out. Marianna was smiling broadly, and graciously consented to speak to the radio world. She said, "Hey, everybody," then added guiltily, "Nurse, make little Herbie drink his milk while I'm gone."

It's time for the show to start, but there are two late arrivals, Nancy McNeely and Garnelle Rancy. These wives of North Carolina ministers have taken a vacation from Ladies Aids and Chicken Suppers. The announcer asks them to say a few words, but Nancy drags Garnelle on into the theater saying, "You know how wicked New York is; that may be just a gag."

In the lobby were murals done by Lois Torrence. She lives in Greenwich Village with Bessie Reid Shipp, who writes children's books which Lois illustrates. They're both engaged, one to an evangelist and the other to a banker.

In the theater there was a loud murmur of voices. From excited snatches of gossip we learned that Dorothy Lashmit and Louise Blum were each happily married. Grace Carter and Meta Hutchison lead third and fourth grades to recess instead of leading Salem Seniors to Chapel. Eleanor Watkins and Eugenia McNew have written a new translation of Virgil's Aeneid with the English directly under the Latin. They are traveling in Italy on the profits. Virginia Garner and her husband, an educator, have made great progress in establishing a school where grades are not given.

The babel of voices ceased as Anna Withers, famous organist, began playing. Her selections were primarily compositions of Virginia Thompson and Wilda Mae Yingling. Miss Thompson's best known work is "At the Clubhouse," dedicated to C. G. V. Miss Yingling has gone quite modern with psychiatric studies in music; her best known is "At Daytona."

Miss Wither's program was followed by Pathé News. The first flash was a bridge tournament in which Dorothea Rights and her husband were the victors. Dorothea said, "We use the psychic system solely. It's just grand for congenial couples."

The next pictures were taken of the departure of the "Amandie" on her maiden voyage. The boat was named for Amanda Hallaman, wife of a wealthy ship owner. On the deck were Frika and her husband who were leaving for Abyssinia to attend a peace conference. Martha Schlegel and Gertrude Schwalbe stood on the dock waving fond farewells. Martha had deserted the little Pennsylvania Moravian fifth graders long enough to see her former roommate off, and Gertrude and her husband were staying in New York prior to their departure for Alaska, where they will shiver and teach little Eskimos to tell the truth. Mary Lih Reeves suggested that they take along one of Bruce's super-warm heaters.

Walking up the gang plank were Mary Daniel and Sarah K. Thompson. They were hardly recognizable for the flowers and packages. Mary is joining her husband, the Duke of Bergundy in France and Sarah K. is going to Germany to study obstetrics.

After Pathé News all heads were turned to see the dramatic entrance of Miss Mary Mills, Wagnerian Opera star and wife of a famous music critic. With her was Miss Josephine Reece, her secretary. It's rumored that Jo's mail is heavy with orchids from admiring men and bombs from jealous debutantes.

When Miss Mills and her party were settled the feature picture started. Mary Nelson Anderson, famous correspondent in a number of alienation of affection suits, designed the coiffure of the characters. The dialogue was adapted for the screen by Melrose Hendrix, renowned writer and Pulitzer Prize winner.

During intermission (the picture was quite long) conversation between old acquaintances was resumed.

We learned that Jean Robinson, contrary to her repeated denials, married and is teaching her own little sticky-fingered children to play Beethoven's "Minuet in G."

Agnes Brown has married a famous doctor and spends her spare time promoting a foundling's home.

Betty Wilson and Carlotta Ogburn have become internationally known scientists and explorers. Possibly you have seen their pictures and endorsements on Campbell's Apple Sauce.

Madeline Smith's husband was injured in an accident, and she's tenderly nursing him back to health.

Ada Pfohl and Ruth Kuykendall married Moravian ministers, and now they make Christmas cookies and sugar bread for their own little Moravians.

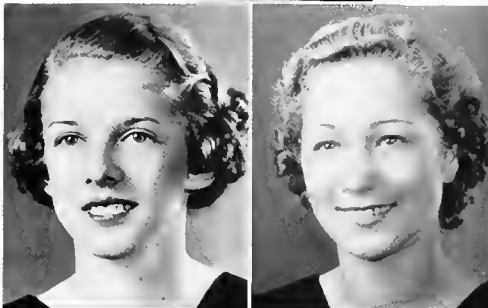

All conversation ceased as the picture continued. The audience remained spell-bound until the very end. Isn't Shakespeare wonderful?

Class Poem

*How like a mother bird thou wast to us,
 O, Salem! Guardian of our early years,
 Thou nested us, although near fume and fuss,
 Amid old trees far hidden from earthly fears.
 Thou fedst our minds as feeds her young the bird.
 From thee we learned our bodies strong to make,
 And in thy nest with many a laughing word
 We danced and carelessly our joy did take.
 But now at last our wings are fully grown.
 And from thy nest our flight we must begin.
 We leave thy loving care, the friends we've known,
 We fly into the world our place to win.
 But never say ungrateful each departs;
 We bear thy name engraved upon our hearts.*

Jean: "Where is Bill this afternoon?"

Marjorie: "If he knows as much about canoes as he thinks he does, he's out canoeing; but if he doesn't know any more than I think he does,
he's swimming."

Garrison: "I've a great mind to rock the boat and frighten you."

McArn: "Once a young man like you tried that with me and the boat upset."

Garrison: "And what did you do?"

McArn: "I swam ashore and notified the corner."

1936 Senior (leaving college): "Goodbye, sir, I'm indebted to you for all I know."

Dr. Anscombe: "That's all right. Don't mention such a trifle."

Buddy: "Oh, Mother, here's a little green snake."

Mrs. Downs: "Well, stay away from it. It may be just as dangerous as a ripe one."

The president of a local gas company was making a stirring address. "Think of the good the gas company has done! If I were permitted a pun, I should say, 'Honor the Light Brigade'!"

And a customer shouted, "Oh, what a charge they made!"

REDDY KILLOWATT DOES THE WORK OF TEN MAIDS

Reddy Killowatt can actually do the work of ten maids . . . but, you need pay him only a fraction of what you'd pay ONE ordinary servant.

He can furnish plenty of hot water for dishes, laundry, baths and shaves . . . cleans the rugs . . . polishes the floors . . . washes the clothes and irons them . . . and really a knock-out cook . . . keeps food fresh and wholesome and even can sew, in fact, there is hardly a household task that stumps REDDY KILLOWATT.

Pete L.: "There was a man at the circus who jumped on a horse's back, slipped underneath, caught his tail and finished up on the horse's neck."

Jane B.: "That's easy. I did all that the first time I ever rode a horse."

Peggy Brawley of California: "Now in my state, we can grow a tree that size in about a year. How long did it take you to grow that one?"

Evelyn McCarty of Florida: "Can't say for sure, but it wasn't there yesterday."

Senior: "Hey, Freshman, I'm in an awful fix I promised to meet my girl to take her out to dinner, and I can't remember where. If I ask her myself, she'll think I'm dumb. Call her up, will you, and ask her if she has any idea where I'm likely to be about that time."

Miss Lawrence: "Did you open your window wide?"

Freshman: "Yes, I pulled the top half all the way down and pushed the bottom half all the way up."
